

EcoSexuals Say, “Erotic Energy is the Renewable Energy of Our Time”

January 1, 2016

Contact: Teri Ciacchi at (206) 612-3511 or ecosex22@gmail.com

WAHKIACUS – “SURRENDER: The EcoSex Convergence” will be a 5-day gathering in the woods for 150 EcoSexuals to celebrate, connect, learn, and create. The camping event is being held June 15-19, 2016 at Windward Education and Research Center in Wahkiacus, WA.

Early-bird tickets are priced on a sliding scale from $190-$300 and can be purchased at www.ecosexconvergence.org/registration/.

This summer festival will be a 5-day gathering in the woods for 150 EcoSexuals to celebrate, connect, learn, and create, featuring EcoSexual artists Annie Sprinkle and Beth Stephens. Participants will partake in educational workshops with topics ranging from embodied consent to honeybees and environmental activism to sacred sensuality.

Large group rituals will be hosted throughout the Convergence to build community and encourage cathartic healing, storytelling will engage the mind, ecstatic dance will awaken the body, and sacred massage will attune the senses to fully experiencing the sensual prayer of life.

A growing number of people around the world, particularly here in the Pacific Northwest, are advocating for a change in the way we relate to the Earth – to think of the Earth not as our Mother, but instead as our Lover. These people call themselves EcoSexuals and they embrace both the earth body and the human body as worthy of our respect and love. EcoSexuals are also exploring how our relationship with human sexuality affects our relationship with ourselves, one another, and Earth’s ecosystems. Stay tuned for news about other EcoSexual gatherings leading up to the Convergence!

*The EcoSex Convergence is helping to create a new culture around Love and the natural world:
A culture of intimate abundance and connection, where we are known, where what we do matters, where we can be wild and free and whole.*

For more details or interviews on EcoSexuality, the EcoSex Convergence, or more information about the Living Love Revolution, please contact Teri Ciacchi at (206) 612-3511 or ecosex22@gmail.com.

www.ecosexconvergence.org

Attend! ~ Learn! ~ Support!

For ticket information, please visit www.ecosexconvergence.org/registration/.